A big Hello from me to you. Welcome back returning visitors and first-time readers and listeners. My name is mohammed Lodhi hussain and this my basic understanding and recap of May 2026 for sundays7pm.com and fanslovebands.com.

A little about me. I started programming on a RadioShack computer in middle school. And then with the grace from up above. I was enrolled in a telecommunications high school back in 1995. That's where this story starts. My first period class was html programming and it was easy for me to grasp the concepts. I look back today and thought it was too easy. So, after a I graduated I attended college and I refused to do a couple of things.

1. No more slacking off.
2. Concentrate on going to medical school and being a good physician for free.
3. Study Biology.

Unsurprisingly, life had other plans. I went to a leadership retreat that first college year and discovered that I like hanging out and being outspoken about matters that concerned future generations.

My main goal for college was to make life better for future generations! I think I achieved that at the time.

Regardless I took the one basic logic and BASIC programming class and aced it. Without any effort. I could have had a career in computers. But I wanted to heal people through being a good practicing physician.

Alas, that was not meant to be.

I started taking Political Science classes in College. And fell in love debating and politics all over again. I made a run for President in middle school. But I lost spectacularly.

The point is that life takes unexpected turns towards where you were meant to be.

And that is probably why you are reading this today. You want to know more. Be more.

Do and have more.

Resulting in a successful life.

I bounced early in life and that taught to succeed on my own and make friends. I would like to think that you as a friend in this play called life.

I built a website in college called bcusi.com. I spent that time building an online presence around 2004. You can look it up in the way back machine on the internet archives website. That was when I understood the value of building a digital presence. Fast forward to now. I have a growing Sundays7pm.com website. That averages about 101 guests per day for the month of May 2026. With Mother’s Day related visits accounting for a large amount of traffic.

Month		Average daily guests	total unique guests for the month <sup>1</sup>
January	=	64 Guests per day	1,117 guests
February	=	96 Guests per day	1,267 guests
March	=	95 Guests per day	1,756 guests
April	=	120 Guests per day	2,037 guests
May	=	101 Guests per day	1,803 guests

In May 2026, I made a decision that may look foolhardy today. But has better positioned me and my audience and guests for more personal web field. This may come with mixed reactions of hot or not. First, I moved all my music to fanslovebands.com it was a personal decision to free up sundays7pm.com space.

It will allow me to better serve you. With a dedicated site for music lovers... More importantly free music lovers. This transition is a bit a bumpy ride for me. Because I programmed both websites; fanslovebands.com and sundays7pm.com with HTML<sup>2</sup>

<sup>1</sup> I call everyone attended my sites as Guests. They deserve and expect the very best. I think that the terms user and visitors do injustice to the spirit of open communication, decency and customer service. I always felt that if you give your very best service, smile and be cordial. It producing long term guests that will generate goodwill to the site and their circle of connections and the world.

programming language and I intend to add JavaScript<sup>3</sup> code to run some projects and activities to make the websites more valuable to my guests.

I had the distinct honor of not majoring or studying in anything Computer Science or Business field. I do not consider myself an Entrepreneur. I consider myself a Renaissance man in an era with not much inspirational taste. To be the contrarian and counter to the popular counter culture of today. The reason I go deep into this topic. Is that the real successes in life do not wait for opportunity they seek it out.

This is as much a personal story as it is a story making a name for yourself in the world. And help giving back.

Although, I can be absentminded in small talk and chit-chat. I prioritize my life a core set of values. This is the hard part.

First, I set my intention to be a personal values based individual. This is not a back bending exercise. Because my family taught me “Honesty is the Best Policy.” And in the book of Proverbs 28:1 It says “...Be bold as a lion.”

<sup>3</sup> JavaScript is an Internet or Web browser-based programming language that allows you to run scripts on a website. To program in JavaScript , I have decided to nest, or include it, into the HTML file. The syntax, for example, is:

<script> insert JavaScript programming here and close with </script> when this is placed inside an HTML file and it works then you have little digital machines running programs. The history of JavaScript is very fascinating and I encourage to look the creator up and you might learn something new. If not, that is cool too. Do Your Thing...

I can go on and on referencing these points. But the true joys in life are profoundly simple.

In an ancillary topic, this is why I assembled fanslovebands.com. It offers me the creative outlet and exhibits the music produced at the time.

I would have preferred to keep everything under one website. I learned through trial and error. That this is decision-making endeavor. In other words, you have to work with the code, clarify, simplify and debug, debug and debug.

It can be tedious as everything that you will feel, for the most part in web design, as in life too.

So, you may be wondering what is the plan, goal or strategy, after having written all this.

Simply put. sundays7pm.com will serve as a media portal for gamers, gals and gear.

With politics and music related stories, multimedia and the oddbytes of life.

Concurrently, I plan to into place a couple of strategies for the growth and success of fanslovebands.com.

I sketched out a blueprint or framework as guidelines. Yet I must my competitive advantage.

1. Be different.
2. Be me.
3. Be good
4. Be faithful

These are some ideas off the top of my reading this. The great part of life is the moments that make you feel alive and a stillness and oneness with Universe.

My competitive advantage is to simplify the complex. Offer a lending and uplifting hand. And use my programming skills to bring democracy across the internet.

Step 1: build poll tree polling feature on Sundays7pm.com to bring elections into the electronic era.

Step 2: Build a voting with device to the world.

Step 3: Build a coalition of leaders to promote the idea of democracy votes to the world. Not as a Usurper of the times. But as insight into social, political and economic patterns that shape our lives. Whether we know it or not.

---

Those are a few tidbits that I wanted to share with you today. There are a lot more ideas I have then the time to do them. That's I put work that is front of and start at it.
